Car free zone

Taking advantage of free bike maintenance workshops during car free day in Dalston

A DALSTON street was declared a 'car-free zone' for a day to mark European Mobility Week. The event in Ashwin Street,

E8, featured free bike check-ups, maintenance workshops, security tagging, street games like giant Jenga, stalls, and lots of cycling and road safety information. Organised by the Council, with support from local businesses, community organisations, and the Met Police, the event on 22 September was designed to provide advice and information for anyone considering giving up their car in favour of walking, cycling and using public transport. For more info and pictures turn to page 7

FREE TICKETS OFFER

RESIDENTS can be among the first spectators to walk through the Olympic Park and see some world class sport, thanks to an exclusive offer.

Over 1,000 free tickets to two top events in the Olympic Park are only available to residents in 2012 host boroughs including Hackney – giving them the chance to experience London's newest green space nine months before the rest of the world.

The London Handball Cup and the London International Goalball Tournament take place over the weekends of November 26-27, and December 3-4.

Handball, an action-packed seven-a-side contact sport, promises plenty of end-to-end action. Goalball is a team game played competitively by visually impaired athletes. The competitions form part of the 'London Prepares' series of Olympic and Paralympic test events.

The Handball Arena is close to the western boundary of the Olympic Park, within Hackney. It seats 6,000 spectators and will be used for sporting, community and music events after the Games.

Tickets will be allocated by ballot with preference given to those living in wards closest to the Olympic Park. To register, call: 020 8356 2021; or e-mail: testevents@hackney.gov.uk

The IT race is now on

THE race is on to develop a mobile app to showcase everything Hackney has to offer visitors ahead of the 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games.

With millions of people descending on London next year, the Race for Apps competition invites entries in five categories: finding your way; making connections; citizen journalism; fun and games; and 'wild card'.

Only the first eight viable submissions for each category will go through to the development stage.

This gives an

“ Hackney’s creative tech businesses rightly deserve their reputation as being at the heart of UK innovation ”

opportunity to some inventive proposals that might need considerable work, while others could be finished products requiring only slight adaptation.

During the race, organisers IC tomorrow, Digital Shoreditch, and the Council will enable the final 40 competitors to pitch to a network of mentors and investors to help develop the software.

The apps will then have to be ready by next April for members of IC tomorrow's online platform to test them out.

Once finished, they will be judged by a panel of tech sector peers, and the winners announced at next year's Digital Shoreditch Festival in the summer.

Next year, the borough will see an unprecedented number of visitors, including 20,000 unaccredited non-sports journalists and people from outside Hackney making use of friends and family connections to visit. The apps will help them find out everything they could possibly want to know about the area.

Race for Apps also offers an opportunity for local developers to highlight and sell their work to an international audience.

Cllr Guy Nicholson, Cabinet Member for Regeneration and the 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games, said: "Hackney's creative tech businesses are world class and rightly deserve their reputation as being at the heart of UK innovation."

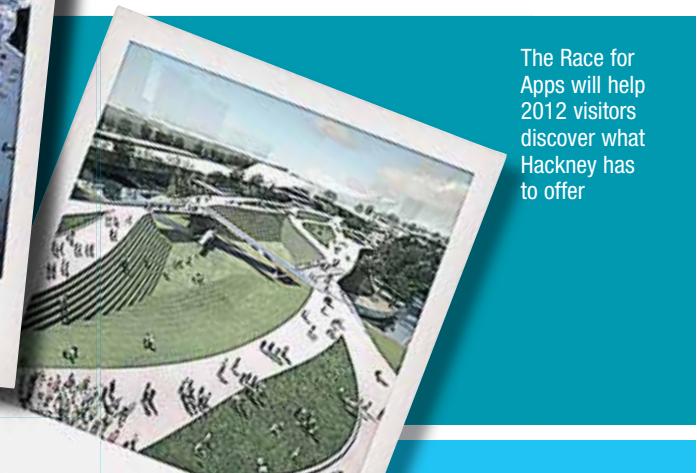

"Race for Apps provides the perfect platform from which to showcase this innovation and make a contribution to Hackney's wider economy by encouraging and guiding visitors around the great town centres and neighbourhoods that make up our borough."

UK number three, Anne Keothavong, passes on some top tips to youngsters from Hackney City Tennis Club

Anyone for tennis?

HOME GROWN tennis star Anne Keothavong has officially opened new tennis courts at Hackney Downs.

The British number three gave some top tips to a group of 25 children from Hackney City Tennis Club on 4 October. Marley Silcott, 11, a Mossbourne Academy pupil ranked 10th in the UK's 11 and under category, said: "I really like the new courts, the surface is really smooth and the floodlights mean we can practice outside even when it's dark. I train six times a week and hope to become a professional tennis player."

Hackney Downs has undergone a £1million makeover and now boasts a new pavilion, multi-use games area and resurfaced basketball court. The park also has five tennis England. A fifth court is due to be resurfaced by the Council later this year.

Anne said: "I'm really glad to see the new courts in person and being used. They are completely different to when I grew up playing on them and it's fantastic to see so many young kids picking up a racket and playing the sport. Now with the floodlights in place, providing that the weather is nice, they can be used all year round."

News in brief

Google™

Internet giant's Shoreditch base

GOOGLE has announced plans to set up a base in Shoreditch.

The internet giant has signed a lease for a seven-storey building on Bonhill Street to provide office space and assistance to start-up technology firms. Google added the building would also host talks and product demonstrations. However, the Californian company said that it was not planning to move its UK headquarters – currently in Victoria – to the area.

David Singleton, Google UK's engineering director, said: "Finding a suitable building is the first major step, and we hope to announce more details about the organisations we'll work with and how they will use the space in the coming months.

"East London is already home to hundreds of innovative British start-ups, and has huge potential for economic growth and new jobs over the coming years."

The area surrounding Old Street roundabout – dubbed 'Tech City' – has become an internationally renowned hub for technology companies.

Prince Andrew heard about the regeneration in the borough

Royal visit to college

APPRENTICES from Hackney Community College were paid a surprise visit by HRH Prince Andrew when he dropped in earlier this month.

The Duke of York spoke to student chefs and business people at the college's Shoreditch campus on 11 October. Prince Andrew was keen to hear about regeneration in Hackney and the potential it has to attract more businesses to drive the community and boost the economy.

The students, from business and catering courses, described their apprenticeships, and the Prince identified the importance such schemes have in developing a highly skilled workforce.

Principal Ian Ashman said: "We're really fortunate to be based right in the heart of Tech City. It's an incredibly exciting time for Hackney and we're pleased that His Royal Highness took the time to visit Hackney Community College, learn about our University Technical College, our Tech City Apprentice Programme and share our apprentices' experiences."

parade; and visited youth clubs to spread the Olympic message.

Rose Nwuso, 17, said: “Being a Youth Ambassador has been amazing; a great opportunity to understand about the Olympics, especially the legacy, and to spread the message.”

There are also opportunities for Hackney teenagers to apply to become Young Games Makers - volunteers who work on the Olympic Park to support athletes, prepare the venues for events and help with paperwork.

Clr Guy Nicholson, Cabinet Member for the 2012 Olympic & Paralympic Games, said: “To be a Hackney Youth Ambassador or Young Games Maker will put the experience of being part of 2012 on to a whole new level.”

A selection event for a number of 2012 youth schemes is set to take place at Hackney Town Hall, from 5.30-6.30pm, on 28 October.

To become a 2012 Youth Ambassador, apply in advance by 24 October. For details, call Tom Smith on: 020 8356 3896; or e-mail: thomas.smith@hackney.gov.uk

New games area

London Fields is set to benefit from new sporting facilities

ONDON Fields is set to get a new, floodlit, multi-use games area.

Work has already begun on the Council site, which is located in the centre of the park.

Facilities will include a football pitch and basketball court.

Work on the £150,000 project is set to be finished within weeks, then the hard surface of older facilities, which fell into disuse, will be returned to grass, and additional trees and plants sown to improve the park landscape.

Cllr Jonathan McShane,

2012 job opportunities

SIX hundred residents have already signed up to apply for one of the thousands of jobs that will be available in the lead up to and during the Olympic and Paralympic Games. Visitors were quick to register when they attended the first in a series of job events organised by the Council on 28 September.

The jobs will mainly be in security, catering, hospitality, retail, customer service, cleaning and waste management. Cllr Guy Nicholson, Cabinet Member for the 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games, said: “This is a unique opportunity to become part of a team that will deliver the biggest event East London has ever seen. Although most of the jobs are temporary, lasting up to nine weeks, it will boost people's job prospects to be able to say they were part of the 2012 Games.”

Residents who were not able to attend the event can sign up by contacting the borough's jobs brokerage On Site. Talk to their staff at the Hackney Service Centre, 1 Hillman Street, E8, every Monday, between 10am and 4pm. For more info, call: 020 7275 7843.

Mid-Autumn festival

HACKNEY'S South East Asian community gathered to celebrate Tet-Trung Thu, known as the 'Moon Festival'. This annual event dates back thousands of years and according to ancient folklore was started by Vietnamese parents who, following a busy harvest, arranged a special occasion devoted to their children to make up for lost time. The celebrations took place at the Community Centre for Refugees from Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia in Haggerston, where children joined in the traditional customs of carrying lanterns and performing dances for parents.

The Speaker of Hackney, Cllr Susan Fajana-Thomas, watched the 17 September celebrations and presented certificates to some of the children following their performances. Cllr Fajana-Thomas said: “This centre provides valuable services for the local South East Asian community and it is pleasing to see this festival continuing important customs and traditions here in Hackney.”

Organised by the Council, with support from local businesses, community organisations and the Met Police, the event on 22 September was designed to provide advice and information for anyone considering giving up their car in favour of walking, cycling and using public transport.

Cllr Feryal Demirci, Cabinet Member for Neighbourhoods, said: "The Council is always looking for new ways to encourage all those who live, work and study in Hackney to use environmentally friendly modes of transport.

"Car Free Day was a great opportunity for us to be able to remind people of the greener transport options available, helping to make Hackney a greener, cleaner borough."

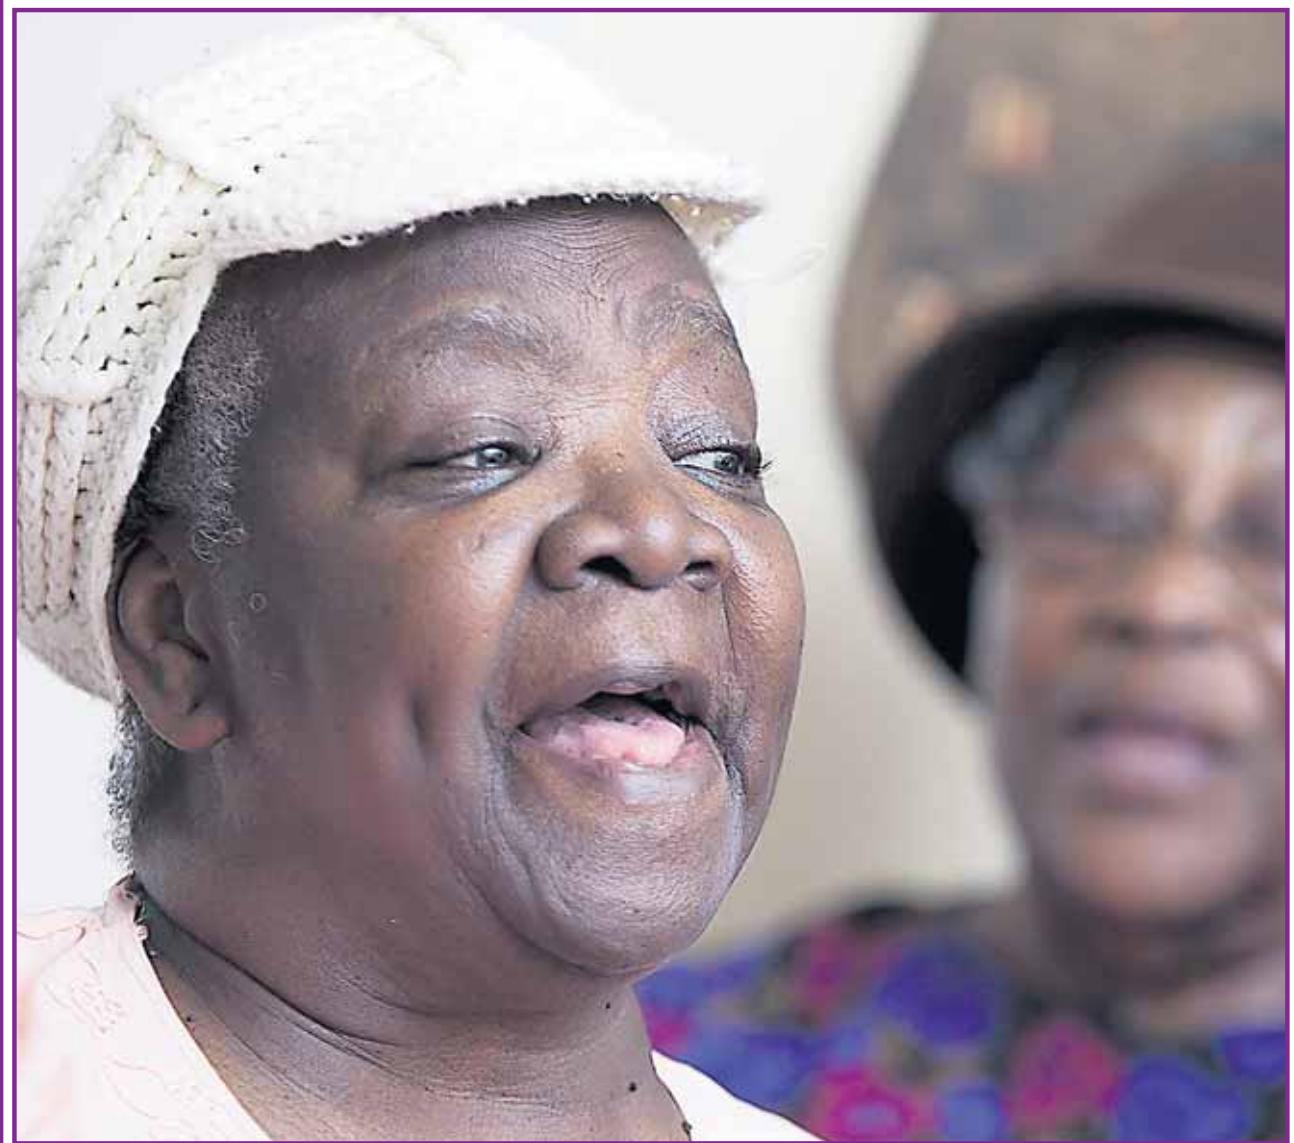

Cycling has many benefits; riding a bike for 20 to 30 minutes, three times a week, can help maintain fitness and significantly contribute to a longer life expectancy.

According to the British Medical Association, the health advantages of cycling outweigh the risks by 20 to one. Cycling can also save people money on public transport, parking, petrol and congestion charges.

Elders join in an event to remember Caribbean culture as part of Black History Month celebrations in Hackney

A GROUP of older residents got together to 'remember Caribbean culture' as part of celebrations for Black History Month in the borough.

Over 30 elders attended the Bell's Project in Peppie Close, N16, to take part in an Afrikan yoga session with a focus on music, dance, singing and poetry.

Imani Francis-Pennant said: "It brought out some great memories and emotions. It was really inspirational."

Pear Barthley, 76, from Stoke Newington, added:

“Black History Month is an opportunity to celebrate the diversity of our borough”

"It was a very fitting event for an occasion as important as Black History Month."

The event on 3 October was one of the first in a Council programme that celebrates some of the cultural traditions that are rooted within families from Hackney's black community.

Cabinet Member for Health, Social Care and Culture, Cllr Jonathan

McShane, said: "Here in Hackney we celebrate black culture and achievements all year round. We have organised events throughout Black History Month as it gives us an opportunity to celebrate the diversity of our borough."

The month is an annual celebration of the contribution that Black African and Caribbean communities have made both locally and across the globe.

There is something for everyone including sessions featuring guest speakers, academics, music workshops, seminars, creative writing sessions and film screenings.

Children and young people are encouraged to take part in activities organised in schools and supported by The Learning Trust.

This year, the programme has been extended for three months, with one of the highlights being 'Our African Roots' – an exhibition that runs

Long-serving Hackney stallholders Carol and Martyn Waller

HERE is always something funny going on around Amhurst Road, says Carol Waller.

"Day-to-day jokes with customers and friends, a man walking naked in the street. Yes naked," she nods. The long-time Hackney stallholder really has seen it all.

Her family have been familiar faces around Hackney Central for more than 75 years, since her late father set up a shellfish stall on Bohemia Place. The business grew, with further stalls in Bethnal Green and Brick Lane that ran for 65 years.

After a exploiting a contractual loophole in the 1960s when Hackney Central station was being built, her father was offered the white roofed, brick unit where the family has traded from ever since.

Carol says: "We've a good rapport with customers and have a good laugh. There's a lot of regulars and some people have been coming here for almost 50 years, since Dad was still working here."

"The best thing about working here is definitely all the people," adds husband Martyn, who lived in Hackney for 45 years.

"We know a lot of our customers, and are always asking about each others' families," says Carol.

Today the couple sell fruit most weekdays, while seafood on Saturdays remains their most popular business.

"We also give unpaid

“We know a lot of our customers, and are always asking about each others' families”

tourist information," jokes Martyn, before the interview is interrupted – by somebody asking for directions.

"We get a lot of youngsters on Saturdays who have never seen live seafood before, so we always spend time explaining what things are," he says. And sometimes adults need some help too. Carol remembers one customer who was pinched by a live crab when he picked it up to examine it. She laughs:

Curriculum Vitae: Carol Waller

- 1938 Family stall opens on Bohemia Place
- 1969 Trading moves to Hackney Central station
- 1976 Carol begins working on the stall aged 13
- 1981 She takes over the family business
- 1998 Carol and Martyn Waller marry
- 2005 Martyn joins the stall

"He must have jumped 20 feet in the air."

Carol joined the family business as a teenager in the 1970s and took over from her father in the early 1980s.

"There were queues 25 yards long just for eggs, and another 25 yards long for seafood," says Martyn, who joined her on the stall six years ago.

"But tastes and the way people shop change; now there's big supermarkets so the days of those big queues are over."

"We do things differently but we think we offer a better service than the big stores," says Carol.

Fortunately the couple had a day off during the August riots and their stall remained undamaged, but they were filmed by TV crews when Mayor of London, Boris Johnson, and Labour party leader, Ed Milliband spoke to them during a visit to the borough soon after.

"A few people spotted us on TV and had a laugh at us about it. The politicians spoke about the riots and that Carol is distantly related to best-selling horror writer James Herbert [who is the son of a Bethnal Green stallholder]," says Martyn.

"Yes we're second cousins. Though it'd be nice being a bit closer to him," Carol smiles, crossing her fingers.

All your recycling questions answered

Q: It takes forever to put my recycling waste inside the recycling bins with orange lids on my estate. Can you just leave them open? It would be much easier.

A: Recycling bins have small openings to make sure the contents are not tampered with.

In the past when lids have been left open, non-suitable materials have been mixed with recycling.

Over the summer, residents living in estates and high-rise properties were issued with a re-useable orange bag which can be placed in the kitchen and used to carry items to the nearest recycling bank. If you didn't receive your bag, or have just moved to Hackney, request one free of charge by calling the Hackney Wasteline on: 020 8356 6688, or e-mail: recycling@hackney.gov.uk.

Some of this year's Hackney in Bloom winners and their gardens

Winning blooms

SOME of the borough's keenest gardeners have been honoured in this year's Hackney in Bloom awards.

A panel of judges visited more than 70 gardens to pick winners in nine categories.

Anil Chakowa won two awards – best front garden and best container garden – for her plot on Green Lanes, N16; The Beehive, New

North Road, was named best business premises; Robin Hood Community Garden, Big Hill, won best community project; Strand Building, Urswick Road, got first prize for best voluntary organisation garden; Lee House Rehabilitation & Employment Service in Rectory Road picked up best educational garden; Dr Taiiana Parrott in Kenton Road won best food growing project; Isaac and Esther Ramsey, from Maury Road, got the 'young and green fingered' award; and Benthal primary won best school garden.

Cllr Jonathan McShane, Cabinet Member for Heath, Social Care and Community Services, said: "Congratulations to all this year's winners who have provided beautiful gardens and green spaces for us all to enjoy."

The competition is organised by the Council in partnership with Hackney Homes and sponsors.

It recognises those who work hard to make the borough a pleasant place to live.

Compost giveaway

MORE than 60 residents came out on the hottest October day on record to pick up free compost, along with some top tips for their plants and gardens.

The popular giveaway saw more than five tonnes of compost hauled away by keen gardeners on 1 October. More than 50 per cent of attendees said they planned to use it for food growing, while the rest took compost for general gardening.

ecoACTIVE Education also offered activities for children and families on the day to help raise awareness of the importance of composting. Participants got the chance to take part in a treasure hunt and make recycled newspaper plant pots.

There was also 'A Love Food Hate Waste' stall, and soil expert Doctor Compost was on hand to answer queries.

The Hackney Marshes event was organised by the Council's recycling team.

News in brief

Save money on nappies

MAPLEDENE and Queensbridge Children's Centre was the new venue for the latest 'Nappuccino' event. The free coffee morning is an opportunity for parents and carers to find out all they need to know about real nappies, and get a £54.15 voucher towards their cost. Using real nappies is quick and easy and can save parents up to £1,200. More than 300 parents and carers have attended monthly Nappuccino events since they started in 2009. They are organised by the Hackney Real Nappy Network in partnership with the Council and not-for-profit enterprise Nappy Ever After. The next event takes place on 21 October. ### Little Noise Sessions

St-John-at-Hackney Church, Lower Clapton Road, E5; 22-27 November

St John-at-Hackney Church will host its first popular music festival when Mencap's Little Noise Sessions touches down next month.

The music show, previously based in Islington, was set up to raise money for people with learning difficulties, one of the most marginalised groups in society, according to the mental health charity.

BRIT award winners Elbow headline the opening night, with other acts including Marina & the Diamonds (above), Goldfrapp, Example (right), King Creosote, Ed Sheeran, Icona Pop and Sinead O'Conner to perform over six days.

Website subscribers get backstage footage, audio, photos and latest news. All proceeds go to Mencap.

PREVIEW

Film Africa 2011

Various locations 3-13 November

MORE than 50 films are to be screened at the Film Africa 2011 festival, showcasing some of the best filmmakers from the continent. This year, Africa's headline female directors are especially highlighted. Sarah Maldoror, recognised as the first woman to create a feature film in Africa, presents her acclaimed 1972 Angola war of independence film, 'Sambizanga'.

Award-winning Egyptian movie Microphone will be presented by its star and co-director Khaled Abol Naga while other guests include The Times one-to-watch Zina Saro-Wiwa, Ariane Astrid Atodji, Dorylia Calmel, Sara Blecher and Kamaufwa Ndung'u.

In addition, a forum will discuss ways of improving the distribution and exhibition of African film in the UK; and the winner of The Silver Baobab Award for best short African film will be presented.

There will also be live entertainment throughout, with nine nights of grooves from musicians and DJs such as Grupo Lokito, the Krar Collective, Mashasha and Sam, Namvula Rennie, Burn Thomas, Muntu Valdo, Kadialy Kouyate, Rita Ray, Africathy, Volta 45 and Suga Kan'n.

Dr Lindiwe Dovey, the festival's co-director, said: "There has never been greater interest in African film, and Film Africa aims to celebrate and participate in this movement. A half-century after Africans started making their own films, supplanting the patronising iconographies evident in colonial cinema set in Africa, African Cinema is finally being recognised across the globe."

The festival takes place across London with a large bulk of the programming at Rich Mix, in Shoreditch and the new Hackney Picturehouse cinema in Mare Street.

Unseen Tours

Shoreditch and Brick Lane

A TOUR of homelessness in the capital is not high on your typical London itinerary. But this autumn, residents and tourists will be offered a view of the city that goes beyond the grandeur and glitz of West End facades.

Devised by 'The Sock Mob', a volunteer network engaging with the London's homeless, Unseen Tours host a range of walks around the city that combine history and culture with the grittier aspects of life in the capital. As well as walks in the iconic tourist districts like Mayfair, Covent Garden and London Bridge, the group now offers two tours in Brick Lane and Shoreditch. Homelessness can be seen throughout London's boroughs and the Unseen Tours highlight the paradox between the city's extreme wealth and less frequently seen, extreme poverty. The Sock Mob trains homeless guides to weave their personal stories into the historical narrative of their walks, but as well as a reality-check, the tours aim to provide participants with an entertaining perspective on the capital. As the organisers explain: "We have no room for the doom and gloom version of homelessness. We seek to harness the energy and knowledge of people living on the streets and those vulnerably housed. In the process, we hope to offer something that's of worth and excitement to every Londoner and visitor."

Unseen Tours run every week from Friday to Sunday, starting at 7pm on Fridays and 3pm weekends. Walks cost £5/8 per person as elected with private bookings also available. For more information on routes and bookings visit: www.unseentours.org.uk, or call: 07514 266 774.

Youngsters enjoy the new improved playground at William Patten Primary School

WILLIAM
Patten
Primary School pupils have been breaking in their new playground following a refurbishment.

The £250,000 play area now includes an outdoor classroom, football pitch, soft play area, vegetable patch, play sculptures, slide and wooden bridge.

Builders worked over summer, with the N16 playground completed two weeks into term.

Bursar Karin Farrelly said: "We tried to do as much as we could over the break, but the children really did appreciate seeing the work being done and got to experience the anticipation of the project.

"It has got a fantastic reaction from the pupils and parents who think it was worth the wait."

Headteacher Kathryn Kyle added: "The playground has quickly become an extension to the way we teach the children, and we're very much looking forward to finding new ways of incorporating our new space into the school's every day life."

The project was completed by FHApaly, a borough-based design and building firm.

Careers inspiration

BOROUGH pupils welcomed visitors from Canada, Mexico, Saudi Arabia and beyond ahead of the WorldSkills London 2011 contest.

Nearly 400 delegates arrived in London to take part in the international competition, from 5-8 October, at the Docklands ExCeL centre.

Teams from each country met with youngsters from 16 local primary schools as part of the event. The visits on 4 October were designed to inspire pupils to learn about the cultures, skills and career opportunities in other countries.

Gainsborough primary pupils welcomed visitors from Canada after learning about their country as part of citizenship studies.

Headteacher Clare Pike said: "The event is a great way to expose our children to the array of skills and talents required in the world of work.

"We hope to inspire and motivate our children to be the best they can be and to aspire to a wide range of professions when they leave school."

Schoolchildren from Benthal primary in Stoke Newington got together with the Saudi Arabian team to talk about IT.

Headteacher Tim

Gainsborough primary pupils welcome their Canadian guests

Hunter-Whitehouse said: "In these difficult economic times, it's even more important than ever that children are shown there are better things to aspire to than being a footballer or a singer."

News in brief

Work experience leads to jobs

A JOINT project run by Arcola Theatre and the Council is helping young people get a foot in the door of the arts and sustainability industries.

The Creative Network offers young people on Job Seekers Allowance

Learn while you earn six-months paid work with companies in London. The programme ensures participants have a supportive and creative working environment to develop their skills in. So far 35 people have joined the network and 80 per cent have gone on to paid work at the end of the placement.

Cllr Guy Nicholson, Cabinet Member for Regeneration and the 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games, said: "Hackney is at the forefront of developing the creative, media and green technology industries, and projects like The Creative Network ensure our borough continues to lead the way." Arcola's Executive Director, Ben Todd, added the theatre is on the look out for new partners to support young people and the continued development of the network.

Summer holiday with a twist

RUNNING from rhinos and washing in crocodile infested waters – how's that for a summer holiday? Sixth formers Tania Hossain, Briony Lambert, Titilope Badru and Alexie Telan from Clapton Girls' found themselves sleeping under the stars – on a 15-day wilderness trail in the Imfolozi Game Reserve, South Africa.

The quartet also helped construct a school in 36 degree heat, lived with local families and got an insight into the community life of the Sangoma people.

Tania said: "It's so good to be away from the pressures of a modern world, to think about how we affect the environment, as well as see the daily life and values of a very different community. The trip taught me so much." The group were working on Wild Swans Women's Leadership scheme, which addresses the gender gap in business, environmental and social leadership. One of the photographs which features in the FYI exhibition

Art trail

By Liz Harris, 24

If you've passed through Dalston Junction station, or been to the Rio Cinema recently, you may have noticed some images of young people on display in the area. Wondered what they were? Well, they're part of the new FYI exhibition – which you're invited to!

YH! World has collaborated with Art Against Knives, Poached Creative and Agenda Photography to organise the FYI: Focused Young Individuals art show.

The images were shot, produced and promoted by over 30 young people in collaboration with creative professionals and social enterprises in Hackney.

The FYI photos are displayed at different locations along the Dalston Art Trail, where each image is shown alongside an interview with the young person featured.

A map is provided to navigate around Hackney to each image. The art trail runs until 30 October at sites including the Arcola Theatre, Rio Cinema, Dalston Junction station, Eastern Curve Gardens, and Gillett Square.

East End life

By Jenkins Akinola, 18

I ATTENDED the launch of a retrospective of the work of documentary photographer Phil Maxwell on 29 September with other YH! World young journalists.

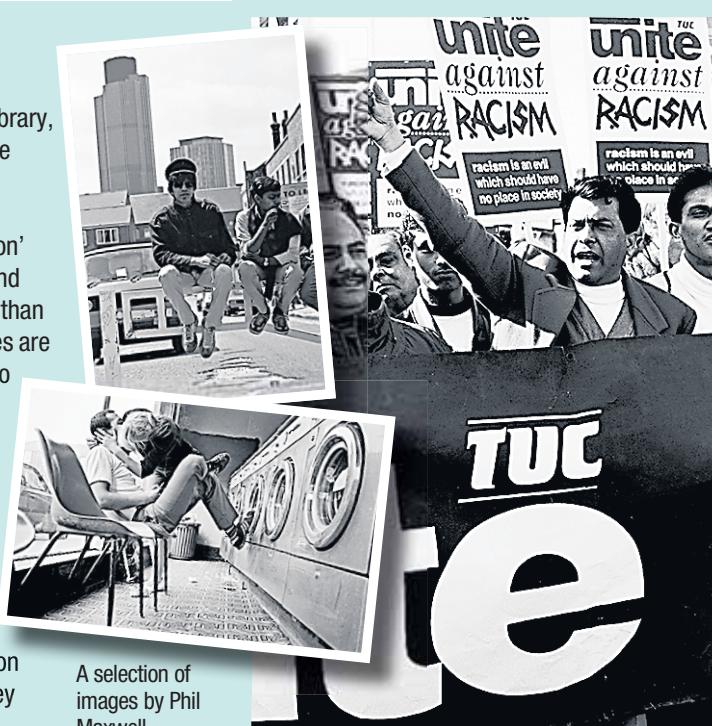

I really like how he takes his photos and how he expresses his feelings for Liverpool and East London.

I loved what Maxwell had done, capturing every day life and making it beautiful, showing what London used to look like.

The exhibition runs until 30 November at the Bishopsgate Institute Library, EC2, and at Rough Trade East, Dray Walk, E1.

It's part of the annual 'photomonth east London' programme of events and exhibitions which more than 150 galleries and venues are taking part in this year to showcase established and emerging photographers. Another event, 'Hackney Observed', will see photographers show their images on a big screen and discuss their work on 24 November at Hackney Museum, from 7-9pm.

Note to health

Left: Dalston arts community Studio Upstairs provided the entertainment

GILLETT Square was the scene of celebrations for World Mental Health Day including performances, films and art activities.

The 8 October event set out to challenge common misconceptions about mental health by encouraging people to talk about issues more with friends, families and colleagues.

Visitors watched films at a temporary outdoor cinema, listened to poetry

“It is important to recognise that mental health issues are common and affect a large number of people” and live music, and watched hip hop dance performances.

The activities were jointly funded by the Council and East London NHS Trust, and supported by the local primary care trust.

Cllr Jonathan McShane, Cabinet Member for Health and Community Services, said: “It is important to recognise that mental health issues are common and affect a large number of people.

“People should not feel afraid to discuss their problems and take advantage of the wide range of support offered in the borough.”

World Mental Health Day takes place every October, this year’s theme was a call for more investment in mental health services globally.

Hackney DAAT makes SMART move

A NEW abstinence-focused self-help group has launched to help people with alcohol and drug addictions.

Self Management and Recovery Training (SMART) encourages service users to find their own reasons for change, and try cognitive behaviour therapy to aid their recovery.

SMART was launched in the US nearly 20 years ago. So far there are 89 groups operating in the UK.

Each one is led by local professionals and facilitators, supported by addiction advisors and a national board of specialists. Attendees work through four main themes together: enhancing and maintaining motivation to abstain; coping with urges; problem solving; and lifestyle balance.

Cllr Jonathan McShane, Cabinet Member for

SMART sessions can help people beat drug and alcohol addictions

Health, Social Care and Culture, said: “SMART groups have been successful elsewhere, and represent yet another way in which those with substance abuse problems in the borough can – with the support of their local Drug & Alcohol Action Team – help themselves to lead a life of abstinence.”

Hackney’s SMART group meets at the Elizabeth Fry Centre, Tudor Grove, E9, between 2-3.30pm, every Friday

News in brief

Power to the people

AN annual event to empower people with learning disabilities returns to the borough this month. The Big Do promotes active participation, while providing a forum to share views. The day of activities is organised by and for people with learning disabilities, and is supported by the Council, local NHS, advocacy charity Pohwer and service providers. It features employment workshops; health checks; light exercise classes; boccia games; arts; budget advice; and information on Council services.

The day will be capped off by a live show from Access All Areas, a theatre company featuring people with learning disabilities. Carers are also welcome.

Stephanie Linden from Pohwer said: “This is a chance for people with learning disabilities to speak up and have their voice heard about services in Hackney.

“They will be inspired by what they can achieve and how they can improve the quality of their lives.

“We are extremely grateful for the continued support of Hackney Council for this event,” she added.

The Big Do takes place from 1-7pm on 26 October at Petchey Academy, Shacklewell Lane, E8.

Making a difference

THE Speaker of Hackney has thrown her support behind a charity that supports blind and partially sighted people in Hackney.

Cllr Susan Fajana-Thomas praised the work of BlindAid at a central London event held to mark its work.

She met residents who had lost their sight, as well as mayors and civic dignitaries from the 11 other inner London boroughs the charity operates in.

It runs a network of home visitors who provide practical help with tasks such as reading, plus offering advice services and opportunities to socialise.

Cllr Fajana-Thomas said: “Social isolation is a problem for many and for people living with sight loss it can be particularly difficult to overcome.

“BlindAid’s home visitors make an important difference to the lives of blind and partially sighted people in London and it is a pleasure to join the charity’s staff, supporters and service users today.”

BlindAid was formerly known as the Metropolitan Society for the Blind and the charity’s roots go back as far as the early 19th century. For more, visit: www.blindaid.org.uk

Pond life

LITTLE of Hackney's rural past still survives today, though one reminder can be found in the form of Clapton Pond.

The pond is said to have been originally dug in the early 1600s during the reign of James I, but there are no records to substantiate this. Whenever it was created, the pond would have been a good watering place for livestock and horses, and was probably also a domestic water supply.

The pond was used as a reservoir in the early 1700s, when Francis Tyssen, Lord of the Manor of Hackney, became involved in the Hampstead Aqueduct Company's plan to supply London with water.

Between 1707 and 1709, Tyssen built a waterworks at Jeremy's Ferry near Lea Bridge, where water was raised from the river and transferred to Clapton through pipes or a wooden conduit, after which it was fed to households through wooden pipes.

The works failed following the death of Tyssen's son in 1717. There were a number of schemes over the years to restore the system, the most successful being in 1760, which brought the reservoir back into use again until 1833, during which time it seems to have been expanded into three distinct ponds.

The middle pond was eventually filled in and appears as a paddock on a map from 1861. Now in private ownership, the ponds were surrounded by white fences and mature trees, but the area was neglected so much that trees became dangerous and had to be felled.

The remaining ponds were drained in 1895, with the intention of filling them in. However, the site was saved in 1898 when it was bought by Hackney Vestry (the form of local government at that time) and converted into public gardens. One pond was retained, surrounded by a gravel path and flower beds, crossed by a bridge, and containing miniature islands. New trees were planted which quickly grew up to create a refreshing oasis in the middle of a busy street.

The Hackney Vestry Annual Report stated that 'The Pond and Paddocks, which have for years past been in a very neglected condition, and an object of dilapidation, are now under the direction of the Public Gardens and Open Spaces Committee, being converted into a very fine ornamental garden and open space, one of the most pleasing features of which will be the laying out of the old Pond as a charming stretch of water.'

When Hackney Vestry was replaced by Hackney Borough Council in 1901, care of the pond fell into the hands of London County Council, although it was eventually passed back to Hackney in 1962.

The layout of the pond and park was raised and a new bridge, fountain and play area were installed.

Today Clapton Pond is once again a focal point for the community which has worked hard to preserve it, a small but precious green space within an urban environment which has won a prestigious national Green Flag award for the last three years running. # The Mayor and Councillors Councillors are elected by Hackney residents and serve for four years. The last borough elections were in May 2010.

Councillors have a range of responsibilities, including helping to oversee the Council and its services. They hold advice surgeries where residents can meet their local representative and ask them to take up issues that may be of concern.

Generally they can help with Council related matters, but if the issue is the responsibility of another person or organisation, councillors can often point people in the right direction and tell residents who they need to see. Hackney has 57 councillors representing areas called wards – illustrated in the map opposite.

To check which councillor covers your area, or confirm surgery times, call: 020 8356 3373. More info: www.hackney.gov.uk/l-mayor-cabinet-councillors.htm

The Mayor

Jules Pipe

Hackney has an executive Mayor, Jules Pipe, who is not a councillor, but is directly elected by the entire borough. The Mayor is the political leader of the Council, overseeing the budget and all Council services. Civic and ceremonial duties are undertaken by the Speaker of the Council who is elected annually from the borough's 57 councillors. The current Speaker is Cllr Susan Fajana-Thomas.

Recipes straight from the ovens at Waterhouse
www.waterhouserestaurant.co.uk

AUTUMN is here and brings with it some of the year's most fantastic food. Waterhouse commis chef in training, Jamel Nwokoye, shares a recipe from the restaurant's kitchen.

He said: "The first time I was cooking this, I never imagined it would turn out to be even more delicious than meat lasagne. Without the meat you get a chance to focus on some other amazing flavours, particularly the sweetness of the squash and the richness of the Parmesan. It has proved a popular lunch special as well as a filling way to get some of your five a day."

Roast squash lasagne

Serves 6

Ingredients

- 1.5kg butternut squash – cubed
- Olive oil
- 400g tin of tomatoes
- 1 onion & 3 garlic cloves – finely diced
- 1 carrot – grated
- Chopped thyme, rosemary and parsley
- Parmesan cheese
- Lasagne sheets
- Chilli flakes
- Salt and pepper

For the béchamel sauce

- 50g each of flour and butter
- 1 litre milk
- Ground nutmeg
- 2 bay leaves
- ½ onion, sliced
- Black pepper

Waterhouse is a social enterprise that trains local people in the ethos of eco-friendly best practice in the restaurant industry. Owned by Shoreditch Trust, its profits go back into a regeneration programme for the local area. Waterhouse in Orsman Road, N1, is open:

Preparation time
45 mins

Cooking time
30mins

Method

- Heat oven to 200°C. Roast squash on a baking tray, with olive oil, salt and pepper until softened
- Add milk, bay leaves, nutmeg and pepper to a pan. Simmer for 30 mins
- Sweat onion, carrots and garlic in a separate pan. Add chopped herbs (a handful of each), chilli flakes, tomatoes and roasted squash. Simmer
- Strain milk off to remove spices. Heat butter in separate pan and add flour until combined. Slowly add milk, whisking constantly for 10 mins or until sauce is smooth
- In a deep baking dish, alternate several layers of vegetable mix, lasagne sheets and béchamel. Generously grate Parmesan on top and bake for 20 mins at 200°C

Tues to Fri: lunch – 12noon to 4pm, dinner – 6pm to 10pm; Sat: dinner – 6pm to 10pm; and Sun: lunch – 12noon to 4pm

Full speed ahead

MORE than 40 residents, businesses and community groups have responded to a draft transportation strategy for the borough. The majority agreed with the findings of the Council's second Local Implementation Plan (LIP).

It describes Council proposals for implementing the Greater London Authority's (GLA) city-wide transport strategy. It also indicates what Hackney would like to deliver in the next five years, such as improvements to town centres, public spaces and cycling facilities.

The majority of people who replied felt the plan identified the most important transport challenges for the future, and that the local targets set were appropriate. As a result, no fundamental policy changes have been made to the revised plan. Nevertheless, the Council will use the feedback to identify issues around specific targets or challenges.

Hackney's LIP has now been approved by Transport for London and the GLA and the final document will be published on the Council's website shortly.

The consultation ran for 12 weeks from February to May this year. The first LIP was produced in 2005.

For more information and a summary of the results, e-mail: consultation@hackney.gov.uk, including LIP2 in the subject line; visit: www.hackney.gov.uk/streetscene-lip; or write to: LIP2 Consultation, Freepost 18819, Consultation Team, London Borough of Hackney, Mare Street, E8 1EA.
